Meeting with Client – 21/09/18

- The meeting began with I (the developer) showing the client (Bri) the current design of the website and did a demonstration of how all the webpages linked together.
  - She then approved the current design and asked if we were able to add some new design features to it.
    - These were because she believed the website was a little too repetitive and needed a bit more to differentiate the webpages from each other.
    - So we started bumping ideas off each other and a finalized design was agreed upon by both parties.
      - These are included below in the UI design.
